This volume - commissioned and financed by CESVOT - proposes good ideas and useful tools about the promotion of a new “culture of communication” between and from the existing charities in the Italian territory.

The chapters are organized in three parts: the first one briefly shows the theoretical background to whom we are referring to; the second delves into the suitable tools who can be used in this particular field; while the third part suggests a specific “how to do” about various communication-related issues.
